My dear young people, I extend my loving greetings to you in the precious name of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Every event unfolding in the world today is taking place just as Jesus Christ foretold in Matthew 24. In August, more than 1,000 people lost their lives in landslides caused by glacial activity in Nepal. More than 4,000 people are still missing, while 11,000 people have so far been rescued from beneath the debris. Even today, rescue operations continue.

Every day, millions upon millions of people who do not know the love of Jesus are perishing in great numbers. We must take responsibility for these souls. On one hand, we must pray for them; on the other, we must proclaim the Gospel to them. For this, a generation must rise up—those who, like Paul, can say, “I was not disobedient to the heavenly vision” (Acts 26:19). We must go into the midst of a perishing world and light the flame of the Gospel. In the same way, Robert Caldwell, in colleges across England, sounded the call that the Gospel must be proclaimed in India because people were heading towards hell. Canon Arthur Margoschis was pursuing medical studies and could have gained great influence and wealth if he had completed his course in just six more months. Yet his heart was burdened with an intense longing and anguish over the fact that he could not save souls. Before completing his medical studies and leaving for India, Arthur Margoschis realised that hundreds of thousands more people would die without knowing the love of Jesus. Considering his medical education insignificant compared to the eternal value of souls, he set out for India.

As a result, the people of Nazareth received the Gospel; school students gained access to proper educational opportunities; medical assistance and a hospital building were provided; homes were established to care for orphaned children; vocational training institutions were started; and women received quality education.

The dedication and obedience of just one individual to God's calling brought about a tremendous transformation in society. When everyone wondered whether anything good could ever come out of Nazareth, it was Arthur Margoschis who gave himself to Nazareth in Tamil Nadu and brought immense good to the people.

Even today, in the very city where you live, there are countless people waiting with a cry of desperation in their hearts: “Who will show me the right way? Who will lead me towards what is good?”

Young person reading this, just as Margoschis—who was born in a distant land—surrendered himself to God's call, saying that medical education was not what mattered most, but souls were, you too can obey that heavenly calling and go wherever God leads you.

FOREWORD

When you do, the heart of Jesus will rejoice. A society will be transformed. And when you finally stand at the gates of heaven, a multitude of souls saved through your life will stand behind you.

Jesus will rise to welcome you and say, “Well done, good and faithful servant; enter into the joy of your master.”

May you hear that voice on that day because you chose to listen today to the voice that is speaking within your heart.

May the grace of God be with you!

In Christ's service,

A PURPOSE

UNFOLDING

Born into a Christian family, she completed her schooling with one clear ambition—to become a teacher, earn a good income, and build a respectable life. But at just 17, she found herself carrying the weight of family responsibilities and caring for her ailing mother. What happened next? Let's hear from her how God transformed her life!

Tell us about your family and childhood.

I was born as the fifth daughter to Christian parents in a Christian village in southern Tamil Nadu. I have three elder brothers and one elder sister. In our village, worship services were held every morning and evening. So even if I was playing at 6 p.m., I would leave everything and go to church for the evening service.

At home, at school, and in church, everyone thought of me as a “good girl.” But deep inside, there were many things in my heart that were not pleasing to Jesus. Many times, I was living a life of hypocrisy.

That’s wonderful... You grew up in a good Christian family and regularly attended church. But did you truly have Jesus in your heart?

When I was in the fourth grade, my Sunday School teacher shared the story of a missionary. I was moved to tears and surrendered myself to the Lord, saying, “Jesus, I too surrender myself to become a missionary. I dedicate my life to Your service.” But just like the fizz in a soda bottle quickly disappears, that commitment faded within a few days.

I stayed in my village until the 10th grade. After my father retired, our family moved to Chennai. In Class 11, I was the only Christian in a class of 63 students. Yet instead of being a role model to them, I began blending in and putting on the same outward appearance as everyone else.

I started listening to movie stories every day. Until then, I had never watched movies or even listened to their stories. As I approached Class 12, I wanted to score high marks, pursue Teacher Training, become a teacher, and live a life of respect with a good salary.

So I knelt before the Lord and made a commitment: “From now on, I will not listen to movie stories. I will start a prayer group in the institute and lead my classmates to the Lord.”

With that determination, I began studying.

Did you actually live according to that commitment? Did you pursue Teacher Training?

After writing my exams, while I was waiting for an opportunity to join Teacher Training, I got an opportunity to study B.Sc. Chemistry and was preparing to attend the interview. Then, one day, my mother suddenly collapsed. The doctors said that because of extremely high blood pressure and blood sugar, a blood clot had formed in the blood vessels leading to her brain, causing paralysis on the left side of her body. She was admitted to the hospital and underwent treatment.

I was only 17 years old at the time. I would cry and ask, “Jesus, I’m still just a child. Why have You given me such a huge responsibility?” Every day, I would kneel down, read Psalm 150 aloud so that my mother could hear it, and pray. After about a month and a half, we brought my mother home. From then on, the entire responsibility of the family fell on me. I had to feed my mother, hold a cup for her when she needed to spit, take her to the bathroom several times during the night, and take care of everything else.

Your studies did not go as you had expected, and you became angry and bitter. How did you continue caring for your mother?

One day, my mother had an upset stomach. I had to clean her, her clothes, and the place where she was lying three times. I became frustrated and angry. At one point, I made her sit up a little roughly, and it must have caused her pain. Tears filled her eyes as she said, “Oh no... I have become a burden to my daughter.”

At that moment, I noticed a verse on the calendar near the doorway: “Whatever you do, do it wholeheartedly, as to the Lord and not to men.” (Colossians 3:24)

I crossed that doorway at least 50 times every day. But that day, the Lord spoke directly to my heart through that verse: “Daughter Eben, you are angry, irritated, and bitter because your mother is in that place. Now imagine that I am the One sitting there instead.” Immediately, I asked both the Lord and my mother for forgiveness. As I remembered the feet of Jesus that were pierced with nails and the feet of Jesus who carried the cross for me, I began serving my mother with a completely different heart. An indescribable joy filled my heart.

With that joy, the Lord helped me continue serving her.

Your anger and bitterness turned into joy. What happened to your relationship with the Lord after that?

From then on, my everyday chores became my prayer time. Even if I had served myself food on a plate at 2:00 or 2:30 in the afternoon, if my mother called me, I would think, “What would I do if Jesus Himself were calling me from this place?” I would leave my food and go help her.

When the milk began to boil over, I would pray, “Lord, just as this milk is overflowing, let my heart overflow with Your love.” When the chapati dough was too hard, I would pray, “Break me too. Press and mould me with Your hands. Soften my character and transform me to become more like You.” While washing the dishes, I would pray, “Lord, wash away the stains of sin that appear in my heart.” In this way, my everyday work became my prayer time.

That’s wonderful! Through your testimony, we’ve learned that even our daily work can become prayer. But what happened to your dream of becoming a teacher?

My brothers would tell me, “You’re always crying. Go somewhere and study.” So, with the Lord’s help, I studied Computer, Hindi, Typing, Shorthand, and B.A. Tamil through correspondence. All my studies were written in a single long-size notebook. Whenever I carried that notebook, I would talk to the Lord and say, “I wanted to study so many things. But today, my whole life seems to have been reduced to this one notebook.”

Then the Lord spoke to me through Isaiah 55: “My thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways My ways... As the heavens are higher than the earth, so are My ways higher than your ways and My thoughts than your thoughts.” I had wanted to pursue Teacher Training, but now I was studying Typing. Yet I realised that the Lord had something far greater in store for me. I would read that verse during every prayer and mark it with my tears. That promise comforted me and guided me day after day.

You realised that even though your dream had not come true, God still had a purpose for your life. Did anything change after that?

During that period, while arrangements were being made for my marriage, my father passed away.

I was overwhelmed. I had a mother who could not function independently, and now I was facing life without my father. Two or three days later, I went before the Lord and prayed: “Until now, I depended 50% on You and 50% on my father. But from today, I am going to depend 100% on You. I place my entire future into Your hands. I am not asking for property or money. Give me the person with whom I can live a happy life.”

I surrendered my future completely into God’s hands. Just six months after my father’s death, the Lord arranged my marriage with a man who was serving as a missionary through the Village Missionary Movement.

I told the Lord, “There is no longer a father I can ask about what I need. From now on, I will ask You for everything.” And the Lord took care of everything without allowing me to lack anything.

That’s Amazing! You were married. Did you join your husband in ministry, or did you become a teacher?

After my marriage, I also joined the Village Missionary Movement. When I came into ministry, there were no churches in some of the villages to consistently disciple and guide the children. So David Ganesan Anna asked me to write a daily devotional and prayer notes that would explain biblical truths through simple, relatable stories that the children could understand. I told him, “I didn’t study much. I don’t know how to do all this.”

But the Lord reminded me: “The Computer, Typing, Shorthand, and Tamil Literature you studied were all preparation for this very work.” From that day, for nearly 13 years, the Lord has helped me write a devotional book called “Moksha Payanam” (Journey to Heaven). I wrote that book using the little notes I had written down during the years I lived with my mother. What I once considered a small and insignificant life, God transformed into a ministry that reaches thousands of young people. Today, there are 37 children in our ministry who have lost their parents. They call me “Eben Auntie!” and run up to hug me. There are also parents who have been abandoned by their children. If the Lord had not trained me through my mother during those difficult years, I would not have been able to embrace and care for these people with love today.

After your marriage, did you continue caring for your mother and keep her with you?

At the time of my marriage, I told the Lord, “I place my mother into Your hands.” God gave me a sister-in-law who cared for my mother even more lovingly than I could. For five years, she lovingly took care of my mother.

Nearly eight years later, my mother entered the Lord’s Kingdom. On her gravestone, according to her own wish, these words have been engraved: “You have dealt well with Your servant.”

What would you like to tell the young people?

There is no God in this world like our Lord. He never considers our struggles insignificant.

Whatever problem we may face, if we hold on to Him alone, we can watch with wonder each day as He leads us. We may have questions like: “Why this course of study?” “Why these people?” “Why this job?” “Why this situation?” We may not understand the road we are travelling today. But one day, we will look back and realise that the Lord was working through all of it for our good—and we will glorify Him. His ways are higher than our ways. If we surrender ourselves to Him 100% and trust Him completely, we can be sure that every path He leads us through will ultimately work for our good.

Dear young people,

Some of the painful experiences we face in life may feel like the end at the time. But those very moments can become the beginning of something new that God has prepared for us. The God who taught Sister Eben Santhosh to find hope in the midst of suffering and prayer in her everyday responsibilities transformed her life into a ministry that now touches thousands of young people.

A closed door in our lives is not necessarily the end. It may be the very beginning of something new that God is about to do!

You will not be put to Shame!!

"Instead of your shame you will receive a double portion." — Isaiah 61:7

In life, experiences such as shame, humiliation, failure, and loss are sometimes inevitable. But God never abandons those who trust in Him. He can transform the shame and pain they have endured into blessings and give them a double portion in place of their losses. When we understand who receives this double portion, it becomes easier to receive this promise by faith.

Who will not be put to shame?

1. God's Children!

The Lord says, "My people will never be put to shame." — Joel 2:26 Yes, those who belong to God as His children will never ultimately be put to shame.

Who are God's children?

"Yet to all who did receive Him, to those who believed in His name, He gave the right to become children of God." — John 1:12

Have you turned away from your sins and experienced what it means to become a child of God? If so, the Lord will not allow you to remain in shame. And if you have never accepted Jesus into your heart, He is ready to meet you today. I know of a young woman who was growing older without getting married. Whenever friends and relatives asked, "When are you getting married?", their questions became a source of deep pain and embarrassment for her. She was distressed because she did not know how to answer questions such as, "Who will marry someone over thirty?" She came to me asking for prayer. I comforted her, prayed for her, and sent her home. Within just a few days, the Lord began arranging her life in such a remarkable way that even her relatives were amazed, saying, "How did she find such a wonderful young man?" She received a double portion instead of shame.

Jesus can do the same for you. If you are His child, He will never allow you to remain in shame. He can give you a double portion of blessing in your work, studies, family, and every area of your life.

Message: Mohan C. Lazarus

2. Those Who Believe!

The Bible says, “Anyone who believes in Him will never be put to shame.” — Romans 10:11

And, “Without faith it is impossible to please God” (Hebrews 11:6). Whatever blessing you desire to receive from Jesus, you must believe: “Jesus Christ will do this good thing for me.” Without faith, we cannot receive the blessings God desires to give us. He is a God who honours the faith of those who trust Him. Those who believe in Him will never be put to shame. So, do not give up your faith. Stand firm and remain steadfast!

A brother who had accepted Jesus once went through a season when he did not even have enough money to provide food for his family. Yet he refused to let go of his faith in the Lord. He trusted Jesus for every need and witnessed miracle after miracle. One day, his young son, who was still studying at school, needed a school badge. The family did not even have the two rupees needed to buy it. With tears in his eyes, the father prayed in faith: “Lord, You fed Elijah through the ravens. Please perform a miracle for me today in the same way!”

After he finished praying, a crow came near him and dropped something beside him. When he picked it up, he found that it was the exact school badge worn by the students at his son’s school! It may have been a small thing worth only two rupees, but wasn’t it a miracle for a father who had trusted Jesus?

Jesus Christ honoured the faith of that man who believed in and prayed to Him. The Lord did not allow the man who trusted Him to be put to shame. If the Lord pays such careful attention even to something so small, how much more certain is it that He can perform miracles in the things you ask Him for in faith!

3. Those Who Wait for the Lord!

The Lord says, “I am the Lord; those who hope in Me will not be put to shame” (Isaiah 49:23).

There are times when people place their trust in human beings and wait for people to fulfil their expectations—only to end up disappointed and ashamed.

But those who trust God’s Word and patiently wait for the Lord will never ultimately be put to shame.

The Lord did not allow Abraham to be put to shame. The God of Abraham is our God too! He is your God as well. He will not allow you to be put to shame. So, wait for Him with faith and patience.

Once, while I was in Mumbai for ministry, a couple came to me and said, “We have been married for 22 years. Please pray that God will bless us with a child.” I was deeply moved by the faith they had maintained in the Lord for all those years and by the fact that they had continued waiting for God’s blessing without turning away from Him. I prayed, “Lord, do not allow these children of Yours, who have waited for You, to be put to shame.”

and sent them home. A year later, when I was in Mumbai for ministry again, they came to meet me—with the child the Lord had given them!

Dear Young Friends,

How good Jesus Christ is! He did not allow those who waited for Him to be put to shame.

The Lord says to you today: “Do not be afraid; you will not be put to shame. Instead of your shame, you will receive a double portion.” This promise is for you! Hold on to this promise by faith and make it your own.

Your present situation is not your final story. Trust Him, wait for Him, and never give up. The God who turned shame into blessing for others can do the same for you!

UNDER PRESSURE

Hi friends! How's everyone doing? I'm so happy to meet you again through our series, "Under Pressure." Have you ever noticed that things formed under intense pressure don't simply break down? Instead, they can become something incredibly precious. This month, are you ready to discover the story of something beautiful that is formed under intense pressure—a pearl? Come on, let's dive into the series!

A pearl is one of the precious treasures God has given us. Interestingly, a pearl is actually a beauty born out of irritation. Even an ordinary grain of sand can, through the patience of an oyster, become a gemstone worth thousands or even millions.

Step 1: A Foreign Object Enters

Oysters living deep in the ocean open their shells and draw in water for food and breathing. Sometimes, a tiny grain of sand, a parasite, a broken piece of shell, or some other foreign object slips between the two shells.

The oyster cannot simply spit it out. The foreign object rubs against the oyster's soft body, causing irritation and discomfort.

Step 2: Building a Protective Shield

To protect itself from this irritation, the oyster has an amazing defence mechanism. Inside the oyster is a specialised tissue called the mantle. The mantle cells surround the foreign object completely and seal it off like a tiny protective pouch. This prevents the irritating object from coming into direct contact with the oyster's body.

Step 3: Layer Upon Layer of Nacre

Once the foreign object is sealed away, the mantle cells begin continuously releasing a shiny substance called nacre over it. Nacre is the same material responsible for the beautiful, pearly shine on the inside of an oyster shell.

Made primarily of calcium carbonate and a type of protein, nacre builds up in extremely thin layers, one on top of another. This process can continue for months and, in some cases, for 2 to 4 years. The more layers that accumulate, the larger and more radiant the pearl becomes.

Step 4: The Pearl is Formed

After thousands of layers of nacre have built up, that tiny grain of sand that once caused irritation is transformed into a smooth, round, glowing pearl. When light hits these layers and reflects back, the pearl gains its unique shine, depth, and beauty.

Interestingly, only about one in every 10,000 wild oysters contains a pearl. That's what makes pearls so rare—and so valuable.

Dear Friends...!

The difficulties and problems we face in life can also become beautiful experiences when we respond with patience and perseverance. Every grain of sand that enters an oyster can remind us of the difficult situations God allows into our lives. Without that grain of sand or tiny irritant, a pearl could never have been formed inside the oyster. In the same way, without difficult seasons in our lives, we may never become precious pearls in God's hands or vessels that can be a blessing to others. Just as the oyster's mantle protects it from the irritating object and helps the pearl form, the Holy Spirit helps protect us during seasons of testing, keeping us from being overwhelmed and shaping us into something precious.

Not every oyster produces a pearl. A pearl is formed in an oyster that goes through pressure and irritation.

So remember this: Pressure is not a threat; it is an opportunity for transformation!

THE CALLING!!

*Understanding God's calling is not always easy.
God chooses and calls people to fulfil
His plans on this earth.*

A calling is not something we create out of our own desires; it is the vision that the Lord places within our hearts.

Although Elisha came from a prosperous background, he was not someone who sat around wasting time. He was a hardworking young man. God does not call the lazy. When you faithfully work hard in the responsibilities the Lord has entrusted to you—whether in your studies, career, or any other area—He will open the right doors for you.

When God's calling came looking for Elisha, he did not reject it. He embraced it. "Elijah passed by him and threw his mantle on him" (1 Kings 19:19). Even today, when God calls many young people, they refuse to accept that calling, using their circumstances as excuses. But when Elisha heard the call, he did not delay. He dedicated himself to God, left behind his old life, and followed Elijah. "Then he arose, and followed Elijah, and ministered to him" (1 Kings 19:21).

When Elisha first began serving in response to God's call, he did not immediately perform great miracles. Instead, he served humbly as the servant who poured water on Elijah's hands. No matter how comfortable his life had been at home, once he received God's calling, he fully surrendered himself to it. Because of that surrender, the Lord went on to use him with a double portion of the anointing that had been upon Elijah. If you stop looking at your circumstances and start looking at the God who called you, you will remain faithful to your calling and accomplish great things for the Lord.

A calling to ministry is a great responsibility. When God asked, "Whom shall I send, and who will go for Us?", Isaiah responded wholeheartedly, "Here am I! Send me." (Isaiah 6:8) That is the heart of true calling—a complete and willing surrender to God. The end-time revival will rise from India and go forth to shake many nations. As part of this revival movement, the Lord is going to accomplish great and glorious things through you.

So prepare yourself now and make your calling sure. Do not take lightly the calling God has placed upon your life. Elisha deeply desired to receive the anointing that was upon Elijah. No matter how many trials came his way, he continued following Elijah until he received that anointing. In the same way, no matter how many temptations to sin come against you, if you hold firmly to Jesus and pursue Him wholeheartedly, you will stand strong and remain faithful to your calling.

Dear young people,

Elisha's commitment and calling transformed him into a great servant of God. The Lord has not called you to follow the ways of the world. He has called you to shine as a light in a world covered in darkness. Use your youth, talents, time, and abilities for God's calling. Like Elisha, do not ignore the call of God. Embrace His calling with all your heart. And when you do, you will shine brightly for the Lord!

Why Should I Share the Gospel?

“Why should I tell others about Jesus?”

If you ask a young person this question, they might say:

Young Person: “There are so many ministers who can tell people about Jesus! Let them do it. Why should I?”

Us: “Okay... then let me ask you something. Why are you a child of Christ?”

Young Person: “Jesus loves me. He died for me on the cross. I have received salvation by believing in Him.”

Us: “Then shouldn’t you tell others about this salvation you have received?”

Young Person: “I should... but how do I tell them?”

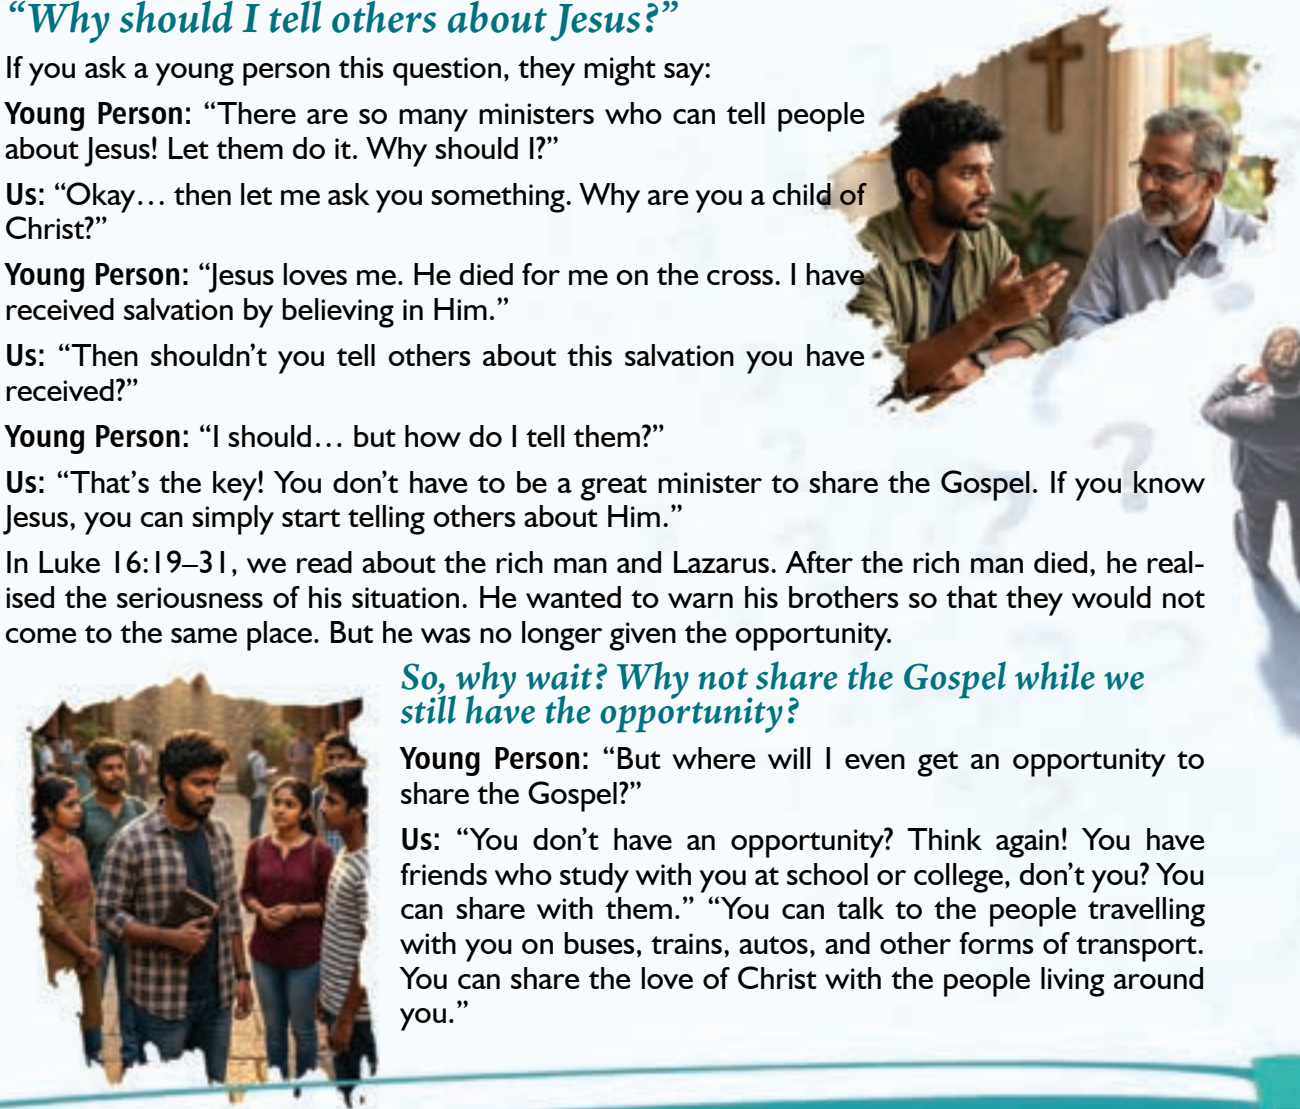

Us: “That’s the key! You don’t have to be a great minister to share the Gospel. If you know Jesus, you can simply start telling others about Him.”

In Luke 16:19–31, we read about the rich man and Lazarus. After the rich man died, he realised the seriousness of his situation. He wanted to warn his brothers so that they would not come to the same place. But he was no longer given the opportunity.

So, why wait? Why not share the Gospel while we still have the opportunity?

Young Person: “But where will I even get an opportunity to share the Gospel?”

Us: “You don’t have an opportunity? Think again! You have friends who study with you at school or college, don’t you? You can share with them.” “You can talk to the people travelling with you on buses, trains, autos, and other forms of transport. You can share the love of Christ with the people living around you.”

“You can invite them to prayer meetings, birthday programmes, youth gatherings, and other events. You can volunteer in ministries that reach Children, Teens, and Youth. You can also give tracts to people who have never heard about Jesus.”

Young Person: “But I don’t know how to explain the Gospel from the Bible!”

Us: “That’s okay. Can you tell people what Jesus has done for you?”

Young Person: “Yes, I can.”

Us: “Then share that as your testimony! How has Jesus changed your life? What comfort has He given you? How has He answered your prayers? Share these things with others.”

Young Person: “But... I feel shy and embarrassed to talk to others about Jesus.”

Us: “Then remember what Jesus said:”

“Whoever is ashamed of Me and My words, the Son of Man will be ashamed of them...” — Luke 9:26

Young Person: “Then I should tell others about Jesus without being ashamed!”

Us: “Exactly! Anyone who truly knows Christ cannot simply remain silent about Him. If you have experienced the love of Jesus, you should share that love with others too.”

That is why the Bible tells us: “Have mercy on those who doubt; save others by snatching them from the fire...” — Jude 1:22–23

Today, here is one final question for you:

Who is the one person in your life who needs to hear about Jesus?

Think about that person.

Pray for them. Talk to them.

Tell them about the love of Jesus.

You don’t need a big stage to share the Gospel; all you need is a heart that knows Jesus!

Situation: He was the governor of Judea, a man surrounded by corruption and injustice, and was sitting in authority to examine Paul, who was a prisoner.

Purpose: To hear the Gospel preached by Paul, turn away from his unrighteous ways, repent, and receive the salvation offered through Christ.

Disobedience: When Paul spoke about righteousness, self-control, and the coming judgment, Felix became frightened and said, "Go away for now; when I have a convenient time I will call for you." In doing so, he postponed the decision concerning his salvation.

Read: Matthew 19:16–22; Luke 18:18–23

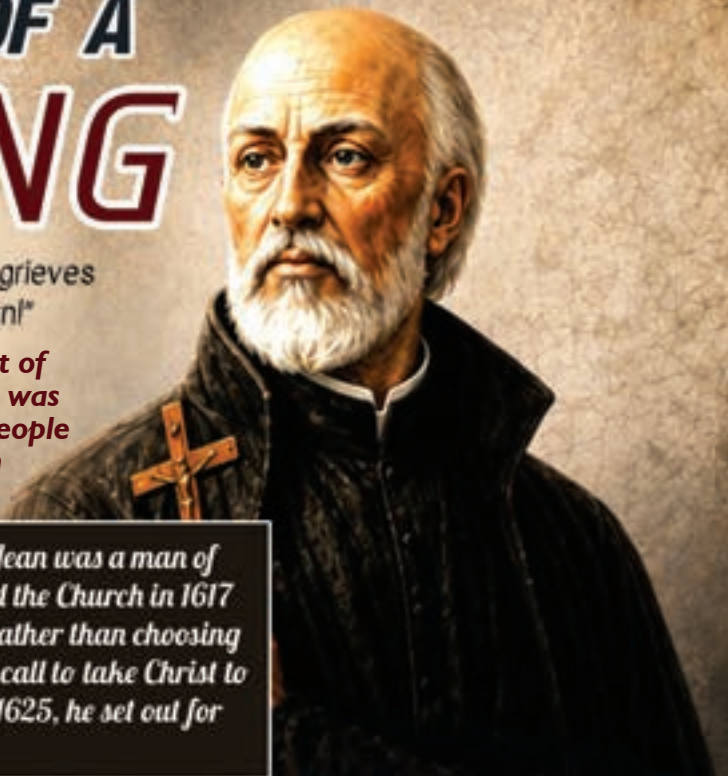

THE PRICE OF A CALLING

"My God, how deeply my heart grieves that You are still not known!"

These words came from the heart of Jean de Brébeuf, a missionary who was willing to give his very life so that people could experience the salvation of Christ.

Born in Normandy, France, in 1593, Jean was a man of great intelligence and ability. He joined the Church in 1617 and was ordained as a priest in 1622. Rather than choosing a comfortable life, he responded to God's call to take Christ to people who had never known Him. In 1625, he set out for Canada.

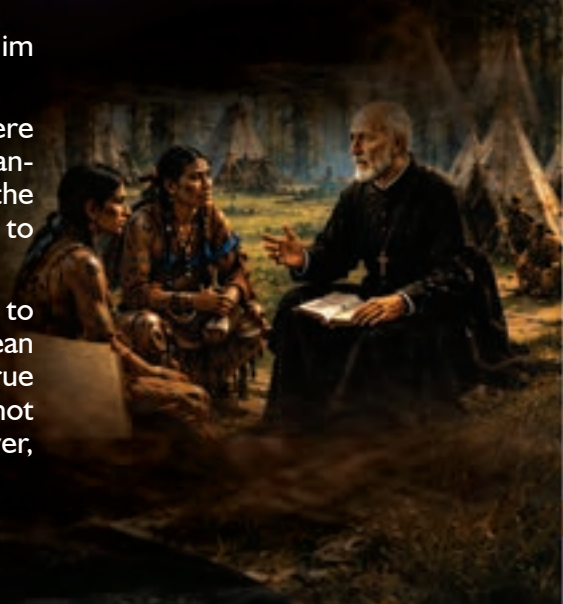

It was far from an easy journey. He faced freezing temperatures, hunger, illness, loneliness, and an unfamiliar language. Yet he refused to turn back. Jean lived among the Huron people, learning their language and culture. He even developed a grammar, dictionary, and Christmas hymn in their language. Because of his willingness to carry great burdens for them, they lovingly called him "Echon," meaning "one who carries a great burden."

When a smallpox epidemic broke out, the missionaries were blamed for spreading the disease. Still, Jean refused to abandon the sick. He continued visiting and serving them in the middle of the outbreak, bringing comfort and baptism to those who were nearing death.

During a severe drought, he was threatened and ordered to remove the red cross standing above the mission hut. Jean refused. Instead, he joined the people in praying to the true God. As they prayed, heavy rain began to fall. Jean did not fight with weapons. His battle was fought through prayer, patience, and love.

As the years passed, he travelled through forests, rivers, and snow-covered regions, visiting numerous villages and establishing centres for the Gospel. To the new missionaries who joined him, he gave simple but powerful advice: "Love these people. Do not complain. Learn to live among them."

The Day of Sacrifice

March 16, 1649, became the day of his ultimate sacrifice.

Iroquois warriors attacked a Huron village, and Jean and his fellow missionary Gabriel Lalemant were captured. They were brutally tortured in an attempt to force them to deny Christ. Boiling water was poured over them, and red-hot iron rods were hung around their necks. Yet Jean refused to abandon his faith. Finally, he was burned alive and died as a martyr. His extraordinary courage was so powerful that even his enemies were amazed by it. But his story did not end there.

His sacrifice inspired a new generation of missionaries. Many among the Huron people embraced the Christian faith, while his work in their language and culture continued to be remembered. Following his martyrdom, many young missionaries dedicated themselves to carrying the Gospel into the forests of Canada.

In 1930, Jean de Br  beuf was officially recognized as a saint. Jean never lived asking, "What will I get?" Instead, his life answered a far greater question: "What more can I give for Christ?"

A Challenge for Us

Do we turn back when even a small difficulty comes our way?

Do we give up serving when we face rejection?

Do we hesitate to go wherever God calls us simply because it is uncomfortable?

Jean de Br  beuf's life challenges us to examine our own commitment to Christ.

"Do not wait until you are asked to give your life; dedicate what you have today to Christ."

— Jean de Br  beuf

A GOLDEN DREAM, A FEARLESS FIGHT

Warmest greetings to all you young achievers!

The achiever we are going to meet today is Asmita Dey, a young athlete from the Belonia area of South Tripura district, Tripura. Her father supported the family by running a bicycle repair business. Raising three children was far from easy for him. Yet, from a very young age, Asmita had a deep passion for sports.

Asmita's sporting journey did not begin with judo. She initially competed in the 800-metre race. Later, when she was introduced to judo, she discovered a new passion and began giving the sport her complete focus. Despite financial difficulties, Asmita never gave up on her dream of becoming an athlete. She trained relentlessly, competed at national and international levels, and continued sharpening her skills. In 2025, she won the gold medal in the women's 48 kg judo category at the Casa-blanca African Open.

The biggest turning point in Asmita's journey came at the 2026 Glasgow Commonwealth Games. Competing in the women's 48 kg judo category, she fought her way into the final, where she faced Heidi Quach of Canada. It was an intensely competitive bout, and with both athletes' level at the end of regulation, the match went into Golden Score. Asmita secured the decisive point and emerged victorious, winning the gold medal. With this historic victory, she became the first Indian woman judoka to win a gold medal for India in judo at the Commonwealth Games.

Dear friends, as you read Asmita's story, remember that her success was anything but easy. She never allowed financial hardships or the challenges she faced in life to discourage her or bring her journey to a halt. She kept fighting, kept working hard, and ultimately created history.

Even after the loss of her father, Asmita continued pursuing her dream and moving forward. Her journey is a powerful testimony to her inner strength, determination, and perseverance. No matter how difficult the circumstances surrounding us may be or how many obstacles stand in our way, let us take inspiration from Asmita's life and keep moving forward with courage.

Let's rise above our challenges, pursue our dreams with determination, and make history of our own!

Youth Revival Meetings

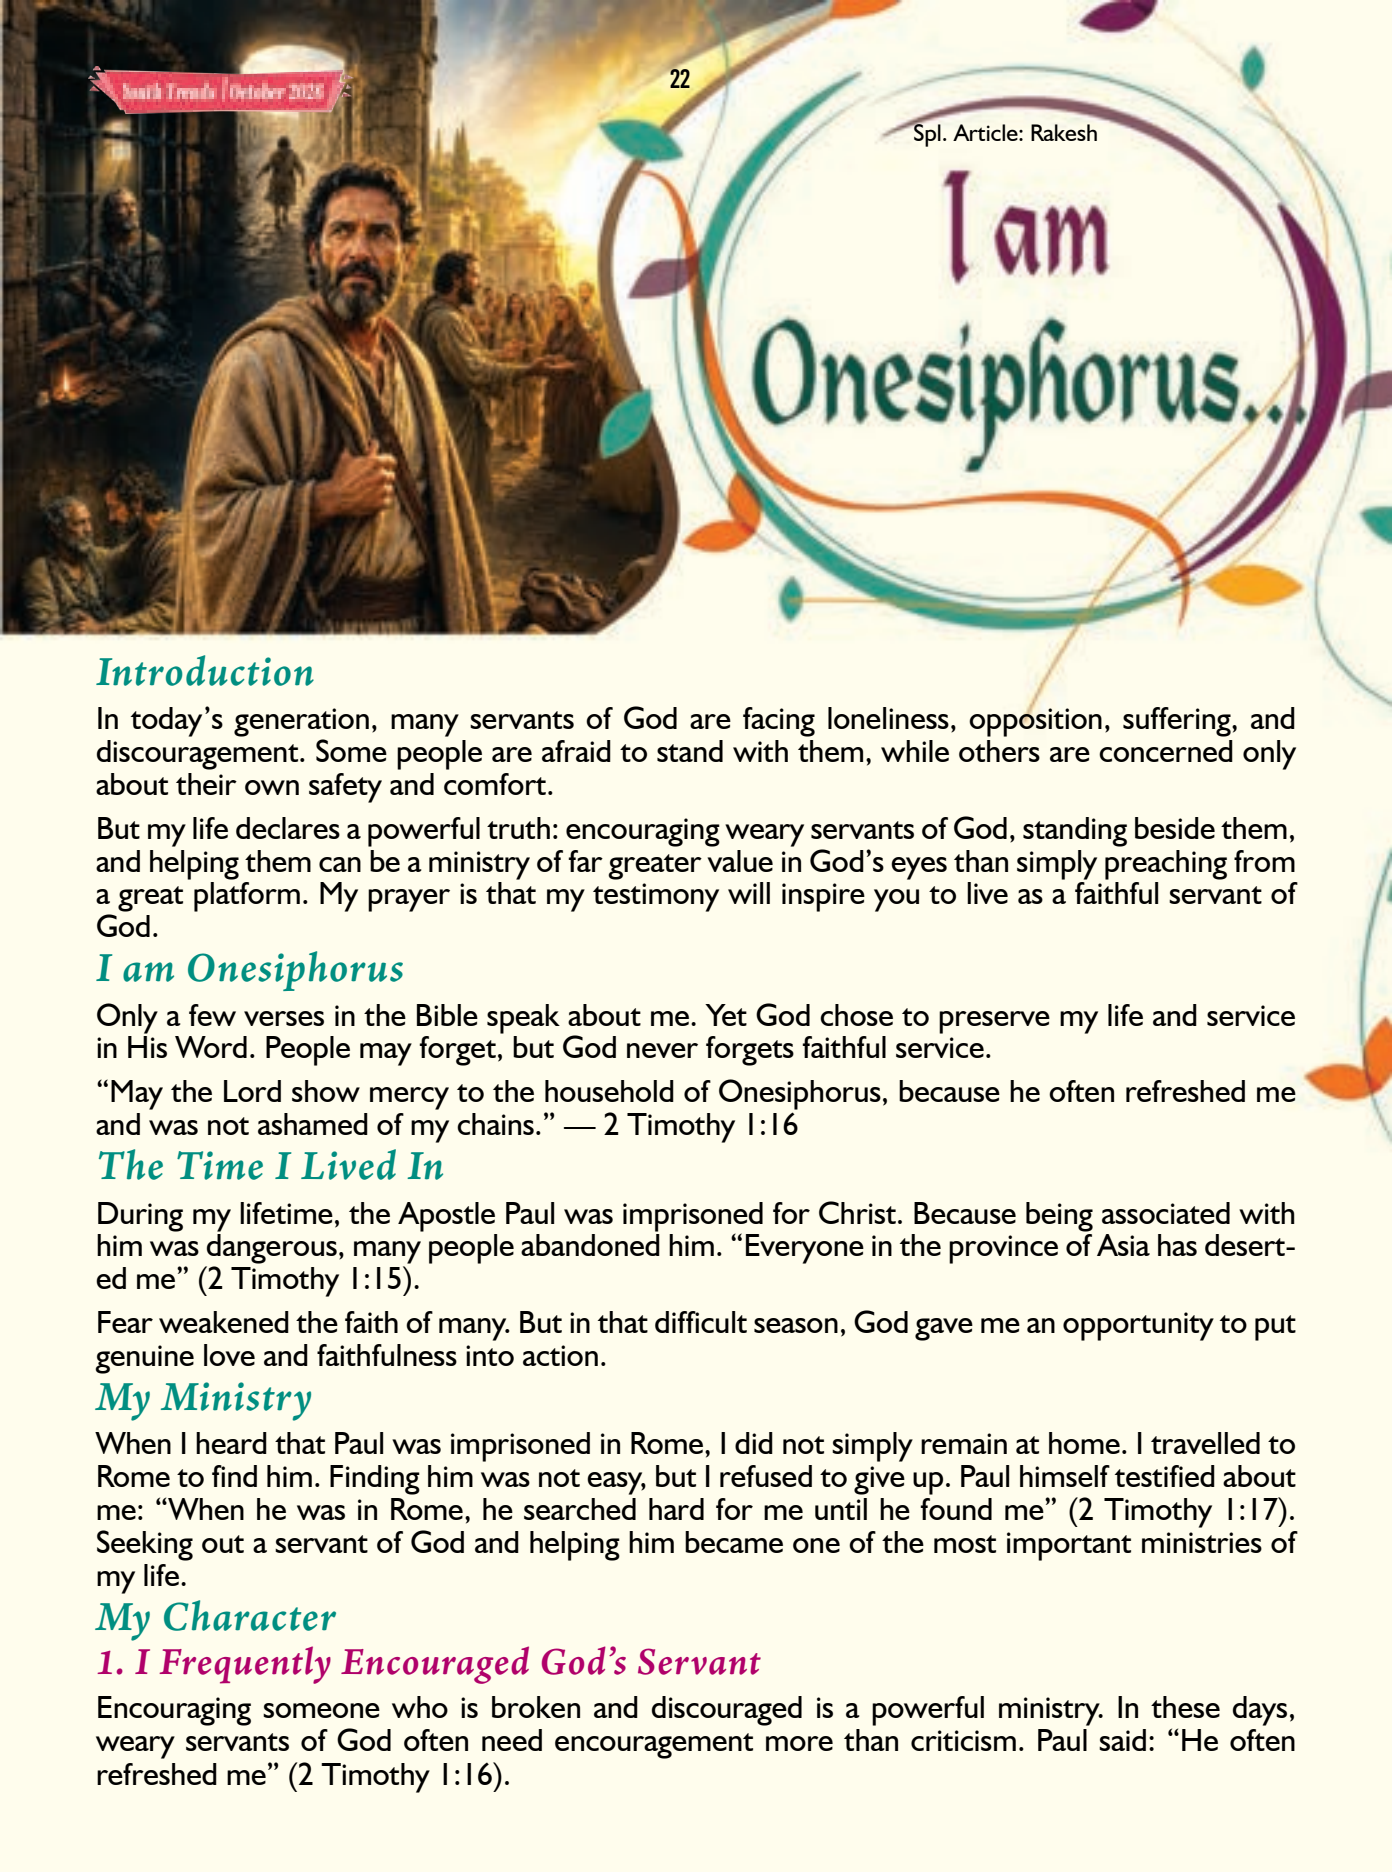

Over the past June and July, by God's grace, youth revival meetings were conducted in Salem-Attur, Chittoor in Andhra Pradesh, Mysuru, Sholinganallur, Prayer Mountain, Pattukkottai, and Tambaram.

Around 1,310 young people participated in these gatherings and were richly blessed. Bro. Sam Jebaraj, Bro. Avinash, and Bro. Caleb shared God's Word and prayed for the young people. The Lord used His servants powerfully to minister to them.

God graciously filled the young people who attended these meetings with a fresh anointing of fire and sent them back to their respective places as carriers of revival, ready to spread the fire of revival wherever they go.

To God alone be all the glory!

I am Onesiphorus...

Introduction

In today's generation, many servants of God are facing loneliness, opposition, suffering, and discouragement. Some people are afraid to stand with them, while others are concerned only about their own safety and comfort.

But my life declares a powerful truth: encouraging weary servants of God, standing beside them, and helping them can be a ministry of far greater value in God's eyes than simply preaching from a great platform. My prayer is that my testimony will inspire you to live as a faithful servant of God.

I am Onesiphorus

Only a few verses in the Bible speak about me. Yet God chose to preserve my life and service in His Word. People may forget, but God never forgets faithful service.

"May the Lord show mercy to the household of Onesiphorus, because he often refreshed me and was not ashamed of my chains." — 2 Timothy 1:16

The Time I Lived In

During my lifetime, the Apostle Paul was imprisoned for Christ. Because being associated with him was dangerous, many people abandoned him. "Everyone in the province of Asia has deserted me" (2 Timothy 1:15).

Fear weakened the faith of many. But in that difficult season, God gave me an opportunity to put genuine love and faithfulness into action.

My Ministry

When I heard that Paul was imprisoned in Rome, I did not simply remain at home. I travelled to Rome to find him. Finding him was not easy, but I refused to give up. Paul himself testified about me: "When he was in Rome, he searched hard for me until he found me" (2 Timothy 1:17). Seeking out a servant of God and helping him became one of the most important ministries of my life.

My Character

1. I Frequently Encouraged God's Servant

Encouraging someone who is broken and discouraged is a powerful ministry. In these days, weary servants of God often need encouragement more than criticism. Paul said: "He often refreshed me" (2 Timothy 1:16).

2. I Was Not Ashamed of Paul's Chains

When many people abandoned Paul, I stood with him. I valued faithfulness to God more than people's opinions.

"He was not ashamed of my chains" (2 Timothy 1:16).

3. I Served with Perseverance

True ministry requires effort, commitment, and sacrifice. Even when the journey was difficult, I did not stop searching for Paul. "He searched hard for me until he found me" (2 Timothy 1:17).

4. I Continued Serving Faithfully

My ministry did not end in Rome. I continued serving in Ephesus as well. Consistent and faithful service is precious in God's sight. Paul told Timothy: "You know very well how he helped me in Ephesus" (2 Timothy 1:18)

God's Blessing Upon My Family

A person's faithful service to God can become a blessing to their entire family. God does not forget the labour of those who seek Him. Paul prayed for my household: "May the Lord show mercy to the household of Onesiphorus" (2 Timothy 1:16)

Five Lessons from My Life

- Encouraging God's servants is a noble ministry. — 2 Timothy 1:16
- Those who stand with others during difficult times are true friends. — 2 Timothy 1:16–17
- Ministry requires a spirit of sacrifice. — 2 Timothy 1:17
- God never forgets even the smallest acts of service. — Hebrews 6:10
- Faithful, consistent service produces an eternal reward. — 2 Timothy 1:18

My Message to Gen Z & Gen Alpha

Today, many people want the platform, but they do not want the service.

They want applause, but they do not want sacrifice. Don't be like that!

When God's servants become weary, encourage them. Pray for them. Visit them. Stand beside them and help them. When they go through suffering, don't walk away from them. The Bible says: "Carry each other's burdens, and in this way you will fulfill the law of Christ." — Galatians 6:2. A ministry that strengthens and encourages others is one of the greatest ministries in the Kingdom of God.

Conclusion

My ministry did not end in Rome. I continued serving in Ephesus as well. Consistent and faithful service is precious in God's sight. Paul told Timothy: "You know very well how he helped me in Ephesus" (2 Timothy 1:18)

The message of my life is simple:

- ◀ Be faithful!
- ◀ Encourage those who are weary!
- ◀ Stand with God's servants and support them!
- ◀ Even when no one sees you, God sees you!

"God is not unjust; He will not forget your work and the love you have shown Him as you have helped His people and continue to help them."

Bible Exploration

Bible Research: Joel Asir

The Old Testament prophets can broadly be divided into 5 Major Prophets and 12 Minor Prophets. Starting this month, we're going to explore the historical background and key events of the first and largest prophetic book—Isaiah—in a simple and easy-to-understand way.

Come on... let's dive deeper into God's Word and explore it together!

The Book of Isaiah can be divided into four major sections

Chapters 1–12 – Judgment and Hope for Jerusalem

Chapters 13–27 – Judgment and Hope for All Nations

Chapters 28–39 – The Rise and Fall of Jerusalem

Chapters 40–66 – A New Hope!

Chapters 1–12 – Judgment and Hope for Jerusalem

(Chapters 1–5) The people of Judah had turned away from God. They were involved in idol worship, living hypocritical lives, and practising empty, false worship. Because of this, God warned them through Isaiah: “Judgment is coming!”

Yet, at the same time, God promised to forgive and restore those who truly repent.

(Chapter 6) Isaiah sees a vision of the Holy God seated on His throne. This encounter completely transforms his life. Through this experience, Isaiah is called to become God's prophet.

Isaiah proclaims both the coming judgment and the hope that will follow. He foretells the coming of Immanuel (Chapter 7) and the righteous King who would come from the line of David (Chapter 11).

Although Israel and Judah would face severe judgment, first at the hands of Assyria and later Babylon, God would preserve a faithful group of people—a remnant who would continue to follow Him faithfully. In the end, Isaiah looks ahead to the day when God will establish His everlasting Kingdom, and His people will rejoice in the salvation He provides (Chapters 9–12).

Chapters 13–27 – Judgment and Hope for All Nations

This section reveals that God is not only the Judge of Judah but also the Judge of all the nations of the world.

No kingdom and no superpower lasts forever. The mighty powers that dominate the world today may disappear tomorrow. But God’s Kingdom alone will stand forever.

At the end of this section, Isaiah sees a beautiful vision—the New Jerusalem! People from every nation, ethnicity, and language will come together and worship the Lord as one.

Chapters 28–39 – The Rise and Fall of Jerusalem

(Chapters 28–35) Judah chose to rely not on God, but on political alliances with other nations.

(Chapters 36–38) When King Hezekiah humbled himself and placed his trust in God, the Lord miraculously delivered him from the Assyrians.

(Chapter 39) However, after this victory, pride entered Hezekiah’s heart. When visitors from Babylon came to learn about Israel, the king showed them all the treasures stored in his palace.

Isaiah then prophesied, “The very Babylon that has come to you today as a friend will one day destroy you and this city.”

About 100 years later, this prophecy was fulfilled!

(2 Kings 24–25)

Chapters 40–66 – A New Hope!

Even though Jerusalem was destroyed, the story did not end there.

(Chapter 40) The period of captivity would come to an end, and a new hope would rise.

(Chapters 41–42) God would raise up a king named Cyrus, who would set His people free from captivity.

(Chapter 48) Because Israel was still living in disobedience, they had reached a point where God could not use them as His servants as He intended. Yet, God did not abandon them. He continued to work out His plan, blessing them again and moving forward with His purpose for them.

(Chapters 49–55) Isaiah introduces “the Servant of the Lord.” He would suffer because of our sins, die in our place, and open the way for us to live in peace and reconciliation with God once again.

This prophecy was fully fulfilled in Jesus Christ.

(Chapters 56–66) The book of Isaiah ends with an incredible message of hope.

God will create a new heaven and a new earth. There will be no injustice there. Righteousness, peace, and joy will reign forever!

Remember This!

What do we learn from the prophecy of Isaiah?

God brings judgment upon sin.

God gives salvation and hope to those who repent.

And ultimately, through Jesus Christ, God will establish His everlasting Kingdom.

Come, Let us Pray

October 2026

HIV AMONG YOUNG PEOPLE

India ranks second globally among countries with the highest number of people living with HIV. According to the statistics provided, Maharashtra has the highest number in India at 3.99 lakh, followed by Andhra Pradesh with 3.23 lakh and Karnataka with 2.91 lakh. In Karnataka, HIV registrations among those aged 18–35 increased from 44,581 in 2023–24 to 66,606 in 2025–26, an increase of nearly 49%. It is also reported that around 56,000 people are living with HIV without knowing that they are infected. Let us pray for those trapped in unhealthy sexual relationships to experience freedom, and that the spread of HIV through drug use and the sharing of needles or syringes will be prevented.

EL NIÑO AND THE RISK OF INFECTIOUS DISEASES

Weather experts estimate that there is approximately a 90%–97% chance that El Niño conditions could continue through the end of this year and into the beginning of spring 2027. As El Niño can contribute to rising temperatures, mosquito and other insect populations may increase, potentially raising the risk of viral diseases such as dengue, Zika, and chikungunya. At a consultation on the impact of El Niño, the Director-General of the World Health Organization also warned that climate change could contribute to severe viral infections that may pose even greater risks than COVID-19. Let us pray that climate change will be brought under control and that the spread of infectious diseases will be prevented.

DIABETES IN INDIA

As the number of people affected by diabetes continues to rise globally, studies indicate that children as well as adults are increasingly being affected. According to a study by the Indian Council of Medical Research (ICMR), around 101 million people in India are living with diabetes, while approximately 136 million are in the pre-diabetic stage. In Tamil Nadu, around 10 million people are living with diabetes, while another 8 million are in the pre-diabetic stage. Unhealthy eating habits can Recent studies indicate that 19.2% of young people aged 12–21 and 64% of those aged 13–17—approximately 8.2 million young people—have sought advice from AI chatbots such as ChatGPT, Gemini, Meta AI, and Character.AI during times of stress, anxiety, anger, or sadness. This figure has increased from 13.1% in 2024 to 19.2% in the 2025–26 study. Around 28% reported using AI chatbots every day. Mental health professionals caution that AI chatbots are not a substitute for doctors or professional counsellors. Let us pray that during times of stress and life's challenges, young people will not depend solely on AI, but will learn to seek God and turn to trustworthy people for wise guidance and support.

India has 13 major ports and more than 200 minor ports. Tamil Nadu has 24 operational ports, including the three major ports at Chennai, Thoothukudi, and Ennore. Around 95% of India's foreign trade by volume and 65% by value is carried through the sea. Let us pray that illegal smuggling, drug trafficking, and other harmful activities will be prevented, and that the Lord's authority and protection will rest upon India's coastal regions.

Let us pray that terrorism, infiltration, drug trafficking, arms smuggling, and other illegal activities occurring along India's borders will be completely prevented.

Let us also pray that God will grant wisdom, courage, strength, and protection to border security forces, military personnel, and other security officials as they faithfully carry out their responsibilities.

May God's protection remain over every part of India's borders.

During the first seven months of 2026, various natural disasters—including extreme heat, storms, heavy rainfall, lightning strikes, flash floods, earthquakes, landslides, and wildfires—have caused destruction and loss of life. Let us pray that such disasters and their devastating consequences will be prevented and that God will protect our nation and its people. Let us also pray that affected families will receive comfort and the help they need, and that government officials, disaster-response teams, police personnel, firefighters, and volunteers involved in rescue relief operations will receive God's wisdom and strength to respond effectively and courageously.

A Major Threat to India and Neighbouring Countries: Is China Responsible for Nepal's Disaster? International Experts Warn International concerns are growing that China's massive hydropower projects in the geographically fragile Himalayan region could pose a serious threat to countries across the world, following the devastating floods that occurred along the Nepal-China border.

China is currently constructing the world's largest hydropower dam, known as the 'Medog' project, in Tibet, at an estimated cost of US$167.8 billion, across the Brahmaputra River, which flows through India's north-eastern state of Arunachal Pradesh, adjacent to the Chinese border. The dam is scheduled to be completed by 2030 and is expected to have the capacity to generate 300 billion units of electricity annually—three times the size of the renowned Three Gorges Dam.

Located just 30 kilometres from the Line of Actual Control (LAC), the dam has raised serious concerns over the potential threat to Arunachal Pradesh. Arunachal Pradesh Chief Minister Pema Khandu has publicly warned that the project could become a "water bomb waiting to explode." It has also been suggested that, following land, water, air, space, cyber and electromagnetic spectrum warfare, China may be adding "water" as its seventh domain of warfare.

Military experts have predicted that after 2030, China and Pakistan could potentially join forces to launch a simultaneous two-front war against India. In such a scenario, there are concerns that China could suddenly release water from the Medog dam, submerging parts of Arunachal Pradesh within 48 to 72 hours, while Pakistan simultaneously launches a direct attack along the Jammu and Kashmir border.

Among the seven domains of modern warfare, India faces significant challenges in three critical areas—air power, space and water-resource warfare. Meanwhile, China is intensifying its military ties with India's neighbouring countries, Bangladesh and Pakistan, while developing strategies to encircle India through both maritime and land borders.

The Medog hydropower dam, which China plans to construct on the Brahmaputra River in Tibet, is reportedly located in a seismically active and geologically fractured region. Furthermore, China's refusal to share transparent hydrological data concerning these projects has created serious water-management challenges for downstream countries such as India and Bangladesh.

Concerns are also intensifying that China could potentially use water as a weapon, creating artificial droughts at a time of its choosing or triggering sudden floods capable of causing widespread devastation.

'EACH ONE' CATCH ONE

Igniters Camps were conducted to spread the fire of revival among nearly 12,000 young people from Tamil Nadu, Andhra Pradesh, Telangana, Kerala, Karnataka, North India, East India, and Maharashtra.

God raised up seven different generations, filling them with the anointing of prayer, spiritual warfare, prophecy, and evangelism, and sending them out for His purpose.

To stir the anointing, they had received and ignite them afresh for revival, Refreshing Camps were conducted.

Imagine this: if each of these 12,000 Igniters shares the Gospel with at least one soul every month and leads them to salvation, 12,000 souls could be won for Christ every single month!

- ◀ If you have never stepped into ministry before, why not rise up now?
- ◀ Start your own small ministry in your school, college, workplace, or church—and watch God bring forth a great harvest of souls!
- ◀ You have the anointing.
- ◀ You have a testimony.
- ◀ You have a friend who needs to hear what you have to say.
